

Planning your festival

Well done for choosing a suitable site for your festival - now it's time to start planning the festival itself! In your group, you should complete the tasks below - divide these amongst group members.

Task 1: 'Getting here'

Your task is to write a set of instructions for travelling to the festival site by car, from the north, south, east or west.

Have a look at how Glastonbury has done it here: www.glastonburyfestivals.co.uk/information.aspx?id=54

You should also draw a simple sketch map of the area to show road access.

You could also consider rail and air methods of transport and write a few sentences for visitors about each.

Task 2: 'Going green'

In lesson 4 of this unit (Greening Glastonbury) you investigated 'how green is Glastonbury?' Using the Glastonbury website, you found out all about what Glastonbury is doing to be as green, clean and sustainable as possible.

You must now come up with a 'green action plan' for your festival. Include:

- How you plan to make the festival more sustainable.
- What visitors to the festival can do to play their part.

You can also use ideas from Southbound Festival in Australia at: www.sunsetevents.com.au/sites/southbound/ecobound.html and T in the Park at www.tinthepark.com/ (look under 'Green-T').

You could also consider which 'worthy causes' you might support and how they will be involved.

Task 3: 'What to see and do'

Using the maps provided in the starter resource, as well as conducting your own research using Google maps and the internet, you should find out about what there is to see and do in the local area, around the festival site.

You should;

- Give details of the locations, labelled on a map of the area (using symbols and a key).
- Give further details like admission prices, opening times, distance and directions from the festival site.
- Give links to websites where appropriate.

You could also suggest a couple of walking routes around the site - one easy and the other more strenuous.
