

Photo titles to go with the PowerPoint chinaornotphotos.ppt

Photo 1 – The Great Wall of China

Photo 2 – A rural village and rice fields in south-west China

Photo 3 – Camels in Inner Mongolia

Photo 4 – Xi'an Jiaotong University has an enrollment of 32,000 students and offers degrees, Master's and Ph.D. programs in Science, Engineering, Medicine, Economics, Management, Art and Law.

Photo 5 - Landscape near Lhasa in Tibet

Photo 6 – Chinatown restaurant in London

Photo 7 – Hall of Union and Peace in the Forbidden City, Beijing

Photo 8 – Local shop selling fruit and hot snacks

Photo 9 – People are encouraged to recycle wherever possible throughout China

Photo 10 – Advertising hoardings are beginning to dominate buildings in the big cities – most are for Chinese companies but increasingly, you see western companies.

Photo 11- Chinese New Year being celebrated in New York, USA

Photo 12 – There is little litter in China and street cleaners are employed to keep areas clean.

Photo 13 – The ancient and the modern! Two men play ancient Chinese musical instruments in the park whilst next to them sit two young men using laptop computers.

Photo 14 – Pork is very popular in China and all parts of the animal can be seen for sale.

Photo 15 – a skilled worker in a pottery factory with inset, some of the very expensive finished products.

Photo 16 – Transport of goods still depends largely on human effort and simple vehicles

Photo 17 – a Volkswagen car dealers on the edge of Shanghai

Photo 18 – a street in Chinatown, Nagoya, Japan.

Photo 19 – musicians taking a tea break – most Chinese people carry a container of cold tea with them wherever they go.

Photo 20 – the bicycle and scooter remain the most common form of transport in cities and they are often shared by two, three or even four people!

Photo 21 – high rise buildings dominate the skyline in Shanghai

Photo 22 – silk worm cocoons are woven into expensive silk fabric using traditional methods

Photo 23 – China has large numbers of modern, high-tech factories in most cities

Photo 24 – modern housing outside a small town with recycling in the foreground

Photo 25 – a tea plantation on the steep slopes

Photo 26 – a collection of over 8,000 life-size Chinese terra cotta figures of warriors and horses

Photo 27 – a chinese meal cooked at the table using individual pots of boiling water – each item of food is dipped in the boiling water for a few seconds before being eaten.

Photo 28 – a fisherman on the Li River

Photo 29 – a farmer ploughs his paddy field using buffalo power

Photo 30 – a group of men gutting chickens whilst floating along the Li River

Photo 31 – market stalls selling fresh vegetables (plus fish and many kinds of animals – including dog!)

Photo 32 – Chinese people use a variety of ancient and modern forms of transport – some of the vehicles are home made or adapted.

Photo 33 – the rich politicians and business people in China favour black cars with tinted windows – mainly Japanese and German cars.

Photo 34 – high-rise buildings are appearing everywhere in China, many of them providing homes for the growing numbers moving to the cities. Each flat is very tiny by European standards.

Photo 35 – a selection of signs translated into English provides amusement to tourists but how good are we at translating English into Chinese?